Criteria
EDUCATOR

To be eligible for Educator of the Year, the following criteria must be met:

THE EDUCATOR OF THE YEAR IS AN INDIVIDUAL WHO:

- Teaches financial literacy education, though does not necessarily work for a financial literacy organization;
- Promotes financial literacy education in the local community, educational settings and/or outreach programs;
- Inspires students of all backgrounds to learn;
- Has earned the respect and admiration of his/her students and peers;
- Is committed to ongoing professional development; and
- Utilizes quality financial literacy education materials.

The above criteria are meant to be used as guidelines for all entries. Nominees in all categories will be judged upon relevance to the criteria and individual merits. Award entries will be reviewed by a committee of judges appointed by the Institute for Financial Literacy. The Institute for Financial Literacy reserves the right to refrain from offering an award in any category in any given year. The decision of the judges is final. There is no limit to the number of submissions provided they fit the criteria. Current employees of the Institute for Financial Literacy, or close relatives of such employees, are not eligible. All submitted materials become the property of the Institute for Financial Literacy. Void where prohibited.
