Criteria

PUBLISHED RESEARCH

To be eligible for Published Research of the Year, the research must have been published in 2011. Copyright restrictions and terms of use must clearly be stated.

CONTENT MUST:

- Use concise language and age/ability appropriate vocabulary;
- Clearly define technical terms, abbreviations and acronyms;
- Be relevant to target audiences;
- Appeal to multiple learning styles;
- Be informative and unbiased in nature;
- Present content in an objective and neutral tone;
- Provide accurate information; and
- Not deceive or mislead the reader.

The above criteria are meant to be used as guidelines for all entries. Nominees in all categories will be judged upon relevance to the criteria and individual merits. Award entries will be reviewed by a committee of judges appointed by the Institute for Financial Literacy. The Institute for Financial Literacy reserves the right to refrain from offering an award in any category in any given year. The decision of the judges is final. There is no limit to the number of submissions provided they fit the criteria. Current employees of the Institute for Financial Literacy, or close relatives of such employees, are not eligible. All submitted materials become the property of the Institute for Financial Literacy. Void where prohibited.
